Defying its 'image,' city stresses deeds

By JIM CARRAVALLAH
Of The Roman Staff

Romulus officials are attempting to inform area residents that Romulus is a community important for something other than being a "dumping ground" for Detroit's murder victims. "It seems as though all the front page news out of Romulus is of a negative nature," said Beverly McAnally, mayor pro tem. "We have a lot of community improvement projects and a lot of community-minded citizens who are concerned, but their work goes unnoticed while the deeds of a few criminals from Detroit give the community a great deal of its recognition."

So, the city council, headed by Mrs. McAnally, has ordered Romulus Mayor Terry L. Troutt to address the major sources of news distribution to tell "Romulus' side" of the "dumping ground" stories they carried.

TROUTT WORTE at the direction of the city council, that the city had to "refute irresponsible reporters, television newsmen and the public surrounding communities who believe the nonsense published since the tragic murder of two small children."

He said that the city is a "peaceful and law-abiding community," which deplores "any characterization which would suggest that Romulus is a community which invites, condones or tolerates crimes of violence or the deposition of bodies or persons murdered in other communities."

He demanded "equal time and/or editorial space to depict Romulus in its proper role as a peaceful suburban community in Wayne County."

Troutt said immediate steps have been taken by the council and administration to "tighten up" on police protection and to improve both lighting and paving on roads, which have been used to drop off bodies, in an effort to discourage the dumpings, which cause a "distorted picture."

MRS. McANALLY, who voted to order Troutt to make the letters, said they are aimed at the "negative front page news" some media have given to the Romulus' problem.

"I'm proud of this community, and the people in it, and think they are exceptional," she said.

"There are such projects as the senior citizens program or the dental program at Hayti Elementary School, which receive no recognition, but provide service to the community."

"The Romulus Roman has carried stories on the good side of Romulus," she said. "But there are other media sources which have not."

"The people of the community are disappointed because, even though they're trying to do a worthwhile thing, its negative news about the community which becomes the most noteworthy

Residents 'miss' remarks on image

By SUE HAPP
Of The Roman Staff

Although most Romulus residents are displeased with their city's image as a "dumping ground" for bodies, few have run up against derogatory remarks about the city's "status."

The residents say it's a "terrible situation" with little or no solution.

In seven separate incidents during the last five months Wayne County Sheriff patrols have found the bodies of murder victims in remote areas of Romulus.

TAGGED WITH similar discoveries at Detroit Metropolitan Airport, Romulus has assumed the status of "dumping ground" for Detroit area murder victims.

Area residents agree that it's a "problem that not any one community is immune to." Mrs. Alice Opificius, 60, of 16562 Merriman Rd., said that she has yet to hear any remarks about the dumping ground "image, but did admit that it's "terrible."

"Why should they pick a city like this," she said. "I don't know where, how or when it's going to be solved, but it's just terrible."

MRS. MARY EARLE of 15295 Merriman Rd. offered an explanation of the "dumping ground" theory.

"Friends have been making remarks on how come they're taking the bodies out there," she said. "The only defense is that Romulus isn't so built up."

According to Mrs. Earle, a homemaker and mother of three, the dumping has been going on for years in Romulus.

"I guess people think it's the place to go to do their business," she added.

New bill has no effect on city-council dinners

A state law which may outlaw executive sessions by legislative bodies shouldn't affect the monthly council-administration dinners in Romulus.

Romulus Mayor Terry L. Troutt said the law, which would require that all legislative bodies do public business in public, wouldn't cover the dinners he and Romulus City Council President Beverly McAnally instituted in an effort to improve communications between the city's legislators, elected officials and appointed administrators.

"We aren't holding any secret business sessions,"

'We aren't holding secret sessions.'

Troutt said "But are merely trying to know each other better in an effort to improve community service."

TROUTT SAID he believed the greatest failure of the first city administration-council team, elected in 1970, was a lack of understanding and communication.

"No one seemed to take the time to sit down together to discuss mutual goals, or to try to understand the other side's problems," Troutt said. "Everyone acted on his own, or with another faction of officials to the exclusion of all others to work for the benefit of the community."

"They all had approximately the same goals, but no one knew it, because they didn't communicate."

Troutt said the monthly dinner sessions primarily were for "communication and sharing of ideas concerning the community rather than planning a course of action."

"I GO into the council meetings with no more knowledge on voting than I had before the dinners, he said.

Troutt added that there is a need for executive sessions at times in government "especially when a person or persons could be publicly defamed if there were discussion of the issue in public."

"It really amazes me," Troutt said. "That a legislator would try to write a law, outlawing executive sessions knowing what goes on in the state legislature."

Energy crisis crimps school field lighting

Because of the energy crisis and the expense that would be involved, Romulus Public School District officials have made no plans to light areas in the city for night recreation programs.

No school athletic competition is held at night in the district either, according to Romulus School Supt. Robert L. McCongehy.

Romulus Mayor Terry L. Troutt said he had proposed the Romulus Board of Education light the field at Romulus High School in exchange for the city undertaking supervision of night-time events.

HE SAID the 1973-74 school budget did not provide any funds for purposes such as recreation lighting of school district property.

Diane Boger, president of the Romulus Board of Education, said that representatives of the Romulus Jaycees had come before the board last year and asked that the board be represented in a study to see if such a recreation lighting program was feasible.

The board will consider the city's proposal for recreation lighting at the Jan. 14 meeting.

County meal program offers dinners for 100 senior citizens

Approximately 100 elderly poor will be able to enjoy free noon meals at the United Methodist Church in Romulus and the New Boston School in Huron Township.

The Romulus and Huron sites are two of 10 locations where hot lunches will be provided under a program established by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

The program was launched yesterday at a center in Highland Park.

IN THE NEAR future, hot lunches also will be available to the elderly under the county senior citizens nutritional project. The county received a $286,000 grant to finance the program through November, 1974. The meals will be available Monday through Friday. In addition to the Highland Park, Romulus and New Boston sites, meals will be served at the Ecorse Senior Center, Inkster Twin Towers, Colonel Hamtramck Homes in Hamtramck, Wyandotte City Hall, Hotel Dearborn in Dearborn, the Livonia McNamara Tower No. 2, and a yet-underdetermined site in River Rouge.

Beginning dates for the sites will be announced.

PERSONS AGED 60 or over and persons accompanied by a spouse aged 60 or over will be eligible.

"The goal of the program is to provide senior citizens, particularly those with low incomes, with daily nutritionally sound and satisfying meals," said Wayne County Board Chairman Robert E. FitzPatrick. "Adequate nutrition is a very serious problem for a substantial portion of our senior citizenry because of their meager fixed incomes and the rising cost of food."

In some special cases meals will be delivered to the homes of the elderly. Transportation to the nearest food center will be available for those living in remote areas.

FitzPatrick said the program was developed specifically for the low income, the minority, the handicapped and the isolated elderly.

FitzPatrick said additional social services will be provided.

Deverich dies saving others

By JIM CARRAVALLAH
Of The Roman Staff

A 19-year-old Romulus High School graduate, Michael Deverich, was the kind of man who looked out for his friends.

And, because of that, Deverich, a fireman apprentice aboard the USS Kitty Hawk, forsook his dreams so that others might enjoy theirs.

Deverich was one of six men who perished, while fighting a blaze aboard the carrier. The group continued to fight the fire, despite orders to abandon it and save themselves.

WHEN OTHER homes in the city rang with Christmas cheer and New Year's celebrations during the past week, Mike's family and friends paused to remember him.

Mrs. George Deverich, Mike's mother, said he was the kind of man who wouldn't ignore his friends.

"I couldn't tell you how good he was," she said. "Mike had a lot of friends. He always was happy and smiling. Everyone liked him."

It was Dec. 11, some 700 miles east of the Subic Bay in the Philippines, that Mike Deverich proved his friendship was more than a smile and a "hello." He was assigned to a detail which fought a fire in the carrier's machine room, the second fire to strike the ship in a year.

KNOWING THE dreams of his friends and the danger they were in, he and five others ignored orders to withdraw and allow the fire to burn.

Mike was like that, according to his friends. Ed Engel of Belleville remembered and wanted to tell the community.

"Mike was an extra special person to me," Engel said.

The gap grows between politicians and people

Separation broadens in response to public dilemma

Political leaders at all levels have extended their separation from the people during a time when the need is greatest to respond to public dilemmas.

The only real fact of political life is that the public perception of it is more compelling than the condition.

And at this point in history, too many broken and unkept political promises and the failure of performance in even the most critical areas have produced a public mood of cynicism and despair.

OFFICEHOLDERS too often are concentrating their efforts toward their self-perpetuation and tax-paid job security than to their duty to the people. It is all too evident that higher salaries and their attendant unearned prestige have given some political careerists unwarranted security and a vested interest.

The arrogance of some and the all-things-to-all-men thrust of others are demeaning to the political philosophies they embraced and to the trust they sought from the people who elected them.

At the national level, the Congress has reacted to presidential powers rather than lead. Even during Watergate, when the President was besieged by those who would destroy him and damage the office, Congress has failed to assume leadership.

The House and Senate can mark as their major achievements of 1973 the overriding of President Nixon's veto of the war powers bill and the threat to detente implicit in the foreign trade bill.

The quickest definitive action taken by the Congress during the year was on a bill requiring professional football teams to allow their games to be televised if all stadium seats were sold 72 hours in advance of kickoff. With some exceptions, Michigan's 19-member delegation to the House has been undistinguished, except for flooding the districts with self-serving newsletters and bandwagon-hopping on every conceivable gimmick.

WATERGATE, while increasing the indignation and skepticism of the people, also has raised the awareness level. Political organizers are stating that for the first time in generations, the advantage of an incumbent in a re-election campaign is slipping badly and may be vanishing because of shoddy performances in office.

In the states, the condition is only less costly although the effect is the same.

State legislatures have been the wastrel sons of the family of governments for decades and have all but destroyed their original purpose. The troubled cities have gone directly to the federal government for help, bypassing the vacuum in the statehouses.

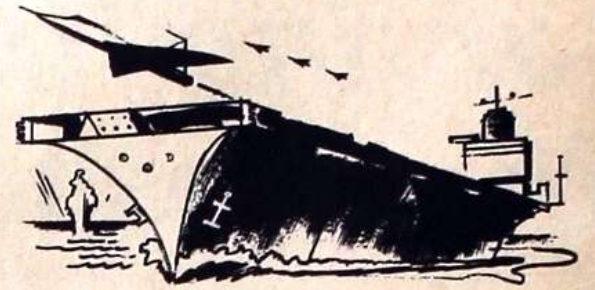

Higher salaries and large staffs, the latest technological equipment and myriad new emoluments of office have established many legislative districts as baronies, held in perpetuity by legislators whose re-election campaigns are financed largely by the taxpayers themselves.

BUREAUCRATS in the executive departments have become soft and arrogant, insensitive to the needs and desires of the people. State-level officeholders too often look beyond their duties to greener political pastures in the federal structure.

Thus the federal pattern of the courts moving into power is repeated at the state level.

The time is appropriate for a respected citizens group to dig deeply into state governments, and for the people to demand changes to achieve a better response to the public will.

Troutt enlarges city hall staff with departmental additions

By JIM CARRAVALLAH
Of The Roman Staff

Romulus residents can expect some personnel additions to the city's departments.

Mayor Terry L. Troutt said he would present two new employees to the Romulus City Council last night. A person to handle one section of the Romulus Department of Public Works (DPW) and another to work in the finance department as an assistant director of finance and purchasing.

Troutt said the two additions do not mean the firing of present city personnel, but instead, will allow better work on the part of all city departments.

THE DPW section head will supervise the work in one of three new sections planned for the department—roads and streets maintenance, city equipment and grounds maintenance or water and sewer maintenance.

"He will be my appointee, and not subject to council approval," Troutt added. "But I'd like them to meet him, because they'll all be working together."

Troutt said the new section head will fit into the DPW's structure without any personnel changes.

"We'll still have a department head, but the new person will be one of three section heads," he added.

The mayor believes the work of the department will be more efficient with it divided into sections rather than no defined job responsibilities.

THE OTHER change will be the addition of a director of finance and purchasing to handle bidding for city business.

The most recent audit of the city's books shows that there still are procedural errors in the administration. However, Troutt believes the new position will correct some of those errors.

"The new appointee will be responsible for making sure that the finance department operations are in line with the city charter and state law,"

'He will be my appointee and not subject to council approval.'

the mayor said. "The audit showed, despite problems during the campaign with the city's first audit being revealed, that there were procedural problems in the government's purchasing and finance handling procedures. "Helen Gallien, finance director, will be retained by the city," Troutt said. "and this person will remain as an assistant for finance and purchasing."

TROUTT said he is searching for a new industria coordinator to fill a spot left vacant for more than two years.

However, he does not plan to announce any changes until after the regular council-administration dinner, scheduled for Jan. 8.

At that time, he hopes to have the council meet his prospective appointees.

"I KNEW him since he was a child," he added. "He and my nephew played together since they were five-years-old, and when I'd visit my sister's home, I'd play with him."

"All the Deverich children were special to me. Mike stopped by every leave he had to see how I was."

"When I heard he died, it was as though I lost my own brother."

Engel took out a full-page ad in the Enterprise-Roman to tell the community what he thought.

"I WANTED people to know there were good people like him," he said. "He was special to me, and I know he would be special to anyone who met him."

His mother said he was special, too.

"He didn't like the ship he was assigned to or the job he had," Mrs. Deverich said. "But, Mike didn't make waves. He knew his duty and he wanted to do it."

"When I said he should try to change jobs, he told me he'd stick it out, but I knew he was looking forward to getting out."

AND, ON his last leave, at Thanksgiving Mike revealed his dreams.

"He told my younger son, Pat, that he'd be getting out of the Navy when Pat was graduating from high school," Mrs. Deverich said. "They made plans to get an apartment."

"It was his goal—his dream—for when he got out of the Navy. Like all boys in the service, he dreamed of coming home."

But, the fates said Michael Deverich, fireman apprentice aboard the carrier USS Kitty Hawk had to choose between his dreams and the dreams of his friends.

A FIRE struck the aircraft carrier, and Fireman Apprentice Deverich forsook his apartment with his brother to allow his friends their dreams.

He chose to fight the fire—and he died.

"I really don't think it's very good for the city," the mother of four said. "I don't know what can be done about it other than having a guard stand watch over the field day and night. I know it's not a very good reputation to have."

ANOTHER ROMULUS resident said he didn't like reading about the dumpings.

"I have 13 acres here, and they could do the same thing to me on my land," he said.

He thinks there's little to be gained from lighting the remote areas, citing the numerous discoveries being made in lighted parking lots at the airport. His wife claimed that the airport's location in Romulus has caused much of the problem in the city.

Mrs. Lois Eberline said that she hasn't come across any snide remarks about the city but did say that many of her neighbors have been discussing the situation.

"MOST ANY city could have such a situation," the 34-year-old homemaker said. "It's unfortunate that it happens anywhere."

Mrs. Donna Greca of 16681 Wayne Rd. said that although the papers are calling the city a "dumping ground," the only remarks she has been confronted with concern living in proximity to the airport.

"I think the 'dumping' name is something that just started and the newspapers have played it up," she added. "You could find an area like that anywhere before but they were called lovers' lanes."

Mrs. Velma Schultz, of 36981 Herman Rd., said that the problem wasn't something any one community had immunity to, adding: "We don't look to a small area, but to the whole world" for an explanation for the 'dumping ground.'

No time for scapegoats

America must face-up to the energy crisis

By Mitch Kehetian, Enterprise-Roman Editor

At last month's energy seminar hosted by the Associated Newspapers, the consensus reached after the all-day session was: "...the energy crisis is for real—it's no joke."

By now most Americans have felt the energy crunch, and need no reminding "it's for real." But where do we go from this vantage point. Who do we blame for the dilemma.

THERE ARE SOME who blame government, the money-making capitalists, energy-making industrialists who want to raise prices—and some blame it on the Jews and Arabs.

Those who blame the Jews, claim: "If we stuck with the Arabs, we'd get all the oil we need," and others demand: "let's go in and teach those Arabs a lesson..."

Israel and the Arab nations are old friends of America; so which friend do we toss to the wolves. Heaven help this nation if we determine friendship on what a nation can offer in return for its safety.

Hopefully, the New Year will finally bring peace between the Arab and Jew, and will launch an era of rebirth in the Middle East. History tells us of the Gardens of Babylon.

'We have reached a time in history when we must take the national interest to heart.'-- John P. McGoff

If Jew and Arab can find the "mountain of peace," then the Gardens of Babylon will return to provide a better way of life for all peoples of the Middle Eastern states.

Participants at the energy seminar weren't looking for scapegoats to pin the energy crisis on; instead, they urged: "We must work together to become more self-sufficient in the New Year."

Earlier, Romulus Mayor Terry Troutt told The Enterprise-Roman that "less politics in Washington and more homework on the pressing domestic issues of the country will help our nation overcome the crisis..."

AT A RECENT MEETING with editors of Panax-member newspapers, John P. McGoff, Panax president, sounded this warning for all Americans to heed: "I have been concerned for some time about the condition of the nation, from hometowns to Washington, as a result of the Watergate scandal and the deterioration the fallout has created elsewhere." We have reached a time in history when we must take the national interest to heart in our newspapers.

McGoff also reminded the editors of his newspapers that "...the eastern establishment press does not represent all America...the Fourth Estate has viciously attacked the last two presidents (Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon) and has precipitated erosion of confidence in our national and international leadership."

AND HE CAPPED HIS challenge with a call for someone to step forward in the news industry and take the lead. "If no one does, the nation can be paralyzed...politically and economically."

The Enterprise-Roman, a member of The Panax newspaper group; and the citizens of Western Wayne County who attended the one-day seminar, took that first step...we must, if America is to weather this latest crisis chapter in its proud history.

So who do we blame for our woes. Do we succumb to blackmailing nations who hold the lever to energy-making resources, or do we develop our own self-sustaining energy sources.

Telling one another we must rid the nation's highways of luxurious American-built automobiles, eliminate costly electric appliances, eliminate the use of lighting...and to eliminate the very things that keep this nation's production lines rolling would bring about the economic disaster the Panax president was addressing.

FOR THE NEXT SEVERAL months, or even through the New Year, we may have to tighten our belts—but in the meantime, we must work to become self-sustaining by 1976 when we observe our 200th birthday.

We have faith that this nation and the working men and women will heed the call portrayed by the character sketch of "Uncle Sam" on this page.

The Uncle Sam we see is carrying a workman's hammer, a business executive's attache case, and a construction crewman's hard-hat—and he's on the go, working for progress.

LET'S RESOLVE that in the New Year the working men and women of this nation, and more so the political leaders at all levels of government—from the hometowns to Washington—come forth with some of the old-fashioned grit of America past.

Hard work, dedicated leadership—and "American grit" will see us through 1974.

And based on the recent energy-saving moves taken in Belleville, Van Buren Township, Romulus, New Boston, Sumpter and Huron Townships... the message has gotten through.

Let us resolve...

The MIA question must be pursued in the new year

The arrival of a New Year means resolutions and promises of a better life. But today's editorial will deal with a resolution adopted several months ago at the annual fall conference of the American Legion Department of Michigan.

The resolution urged that the U.S. Government use as "much influential power as possible" to allow American Recovery Teams to recover all those missing in action in Vietnam and to identify their remains.

At the time the Legion adopted the resolution, the state's news media merely mentioned the action in a few paragraphs.

In a sense, even our fellow Fourth Estate journals have taken the apathetic attitude: "We've got the POWs...what more do you want."

The Legion's resolution is repeated today as this newspaper's top priority resolution for 1974. We must determine the fate of the 1,300 American servicemen listed as missing in action.

In a recent address to members of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce, Lt. Col. Donald Odell of Harrison Township in Macomb County, told the community's business leaders: "I'm one of the lucky ones..."

The colonel spent nearly six years in a Communist prisoner of war camp, before his release last March with nearly 500 other American POWs.

Even the colonel admitted: "When I was taken prisoner, I saw some of my buddy pilots walking away from their wrecked planes near Hanoi. When release time came, they were listed as missing in action."

When asked if he thought the Communists were still holding some of the MIAs, or whether he thought the 1,300 reported MIAs were dead—he said: "I'd rather not comment. There are a lot of families who have faith that one day they will see their loved ones again. Faith kept me alive, and it kept my family together during my six year captivity."

We too have faith, and we again call upon every American to resolve that in 1974 this nation use its "influential power" to determine the fate of our missing American boys.

If this nation can assist in getting the warring Arabs and Israelis to talk peace, then let's exert some of that buying power to find our missing MIAs.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has performed the impossible in the Mideast crisis, he paved the way to a state of detente with the Soviets, he opened the doors of Peking, and he was able to negotiate America's "honorable" withdrawal from Vietnam.

Now he can perform still a greater task for the families of the 1,300 MIAs—including the grieving families of two MIA Western Wayne County servicemen: M-Sgt. Gary LaBohn and Refugio Teran of Westland.

President Nixon's "master statesman" must return to Hanoi to exert "as much influential power as possible" to resolve the MIA question.

stay. It's time we work together—for the benefit of the county and the citizens of Romulus who must endure the pangs of having a giant airport facility sitting in their backyards."

And we commend Mayor Troutt for sticking to his earlier promise of getting Romulus its fair share in tax dollars from the sprawling county-owned airport.

Whatever the final settlement, we wish Mayor Troutt success in regaining lost airport revenues for the city, and at the same time we urge that he maintain a close tie with the county on matters pertaining to the airport.

In the past the airport has been condemned as a roadblock to Romulus' future, but we see it as a vehicle to lure tax-paying business into the city.

places and schools. No one wants to stand in the way of progress—even when it means airport expansion. But on the other hand, the township would gain little in the expansion of Willow Run into a major regional air cargo center.

Therefore, we commend the stand taken by township officials...and we urge they go ahead in the Township Hall addition.

Improvement should not come at the cost of chopping up Van Buren into pieces—including the Township Hall.

He's making progress...

We think Uncle Sam has made some pretty big strides in many areas and we're proud of that progress! Let's keep America going forward in the New Year, toward achieving the great American dream. We can if we try...and we can start by getting back to the task of leadership at all levels of government.

Politics was the game in '73

...and Bill Milliken stole the whole show

By BOB BERG
Enterprise-Roman Lansing Bureau Chief

LANSING — $380 million tax cut... energy crisis... Morley Winograd... antlerless deer hunting... attempts to strengthen controls on election spending... a bribery conviction... a start for a state-backed mass transit program... "cages" for newsmen... re-organization of more than half of state government.

These were some of the highlights of 1973 on the Lansing scene as the governor's office continued to dominate the capital.

Governor William G. Milliken grabbed the initiative when he proposed a $380 million tax cut, which the legislature eventually adopted. The lawmakers spent the rest of the year, reacting to the executive office rather than initiating action—an old, old story around here.

THE CUT WAS MADE possible by higher than expected revenues made possible by a healthy state economy. But where the year began on a bright note, it ended on an uneasy one with the energy crisis dominating the thoughts of nearly everyone.

A bi-partisan bill to give the governor and the Public Service Commission powers to deal with severe shortages was blocked in the Senate by the Democratic caucus despite its support by both House Democrats and the governor's office. No one was sure how bad the shortage would be and how much government would have to tighten its belt.

But with automobiles and tourism the backbone of the state's economy, there were a lot of worried songs being sung. The state will surely make it through 1974 without any tax hikes, since it is an election year with the governor and the entire legislature up for re-election. But beyond that no one knows what to expect.

THE ENERGY CRISIS did end one old story point in the state, however. Northern Michigan residents no longer complain about a difference between the price they pay for gasoline and the price downstate pay. The prices are now even—and higher than ever.

There were several attempts to assert legislative authority, but they fizzled. Both houses passed a bill to ban the hunting of antlerless deer in July before going home, but Milliken vetoed it and the veto was eventually upheld.

The controversy did result in some tough words for Department of Natural Resources (DNR) employees, however. The Doe Bill was passed mainly because of resentment over the way some DNR employees go about their business. The governor and department heads sent out instructions to be more receptive to citizen complaints and held classes to show it should be done.

SOME HOUSE DEMOCRATS, led by Rep. Bobby Crim of Davison, who'd like to be governor, tried to start a drive to repeal the sales tax on food. But that ended with a whimper in the House Taxation Committee.

Ethics was a big topic in Lansing in 1973. It started in January after a wave of public indignation over a junket to Florida by nearly 40 lawmakers, some of them lame duck, in December, 1972. A Senate committee was formed to study election reform, conflict of interest and other ethics-type topics.

SUCH COMMITTEES have been seen dozens of times in Lansing, but this time it was headed by two young senators—William Balanger, R-Lansing, and Patrick McCollough, D-Deerborn—who took their job seriously. Spurred on by the revelation of Watergate, they came up with a report calling for complete disclosure of all campaign contributions and some strict conflict of interest and lobbying control measures.

A code of ethics for state employees already has been enacted and the campaign proposals are on the floor of the Senate, awaiting action when the lawmakers return in January. Quite a few lawmakers figure there is so much public attention on them right now they'll have to pass a decent bill or pay the piper in November.

THERE WERE SOME ethical questions of a different nature as well. State Senator Charles Youngblood, D-Detroit, was convicted on a bribery conspiracy charge and sentenced to jail. That led to a drive to throw him out of the Senate, but Senate Democrats blocked it when it came to a vote. That was a rather disastrous public relations move and now some of the Democrats—including newly elected Floor Leader Jerome Hart of Saginaw—say the first thing they'll do when they return in January is suspend Youngblood without pay.

Dems' Sander Levin sets the tone, and his party heeds the warning

A Republican State Representative—Dale Warner of Eaton Rapids—also was arrested on a narcotics charge which is now pending in the courts.

Aside from the tax cut, the most important piece of legislation to be signed into law in 1973 was the School Aid Bill. The bill, for the first time, guarantees school districts in Michigan a minimum yield per pupil for each mill it levies. For the first time, poor districts are guaranteed a minimum yield per pupil per mill, no matter how much it can raise locally.

THE NEW AID FORMULA was at least partially the result of a Supreme Court ruling on the last working day of 1972 that the school aid formula used in 1970-71 was unconstitutional. The court recently made the ruling inoperative, but it had already had produced the results intended.

Governmental re-organization was one of the less glamorous but highly important developments of the year. In January, the governor gave the DNR sole authority over environmental matters in the state. The department was divided into two parts—one environmental and the other dealing with more traditional natural resources area such as hunting and fishing.

The governor also gave the Highway Department complete control over all transportation in the state. This includes the small mass transit systems under the direction of James Kellogg, the man most responsible for putting together and securing legislative passage of the 1972 Transportation Package. Under Kellogg's direction, the department started a series of pilot mass transit projects around the state. The efforts became more popular as the energy crisis deepened.

LATE IN THE YEAR the governor unveiled a plan worked out with House Speaker William A. Ryan to create a Human Services Department, consolidating the Departments of Social Services, Public Health, and Mental Health. The object of the plan, which has backing both from the business and labor communities, is to eliminate a lot of bureaucratic red tape and duplication.

1973 was also the year of Morley Winograd. Winograd surfaced early in the year as the UAW-backed candidate for the Democratic Party chairmanship to replace retiring James McNeely. He squeaked through to a second ballot victory at Cobo Hall in Detroit amid claims he was a super organizer that the party needed to pull itself together. That may be, but he also proved to be a public relations disaster for the party.

HIS FIRST MEETING with capital newsmen resulted in 16 "no comments" answers. Winograd ripped up a reporter's notes and marched out of the capital. Late in the year he angered a lot of party people, with another faux pas—declaring the decision of Senate Democrats to keep Charles Youngblood in the Senate a "very noble gesture." That brought instant statements of disavow from people including former chairman and gubernatorial candidate Sander Levin and resulted in a decision by Senate Democrats to suspend Youngblood after all.

There were other threats running through the year:—Milliken acted more and more like a candidate for re-election, while Lt. Governor James Brickley waited in the background.

—A legislative investigation of the Civil Service system resulted in the resignation of Civil Service Director Sidney Singer on charges of favoritism.

—COLEMAN YOUNG sued for the right to run for the mayorship of Detroit, even though he was in the State Senate. He won the suit and won the election.

—Legislative junkies were sharply curtailed as a result of growing public sensitivity to misconduct in office.

—A "ceasefire" was reached between the Senate and capital newsmen as the Senate cancelled plans for glass enclosed cages in which to confine the newsmen.

—The Public Service Commission showed a new stance in dealing with public utilities, much to the chagrin of the utilities who were asked no more than just to show that their bookkeeping was accurate. Now the commission is asking if their method of business is efficient, how they treat their customers, and whether they are planning adequately for the future.

—THE PROPOSAL TO build a new capital was laid to rest for a while with a decision to build a new state office building across the street from the capital.

—Several legislators got Potomac fever with the opening of two congressional seats with the naming of Gerald Ford as Vice President and James Harvey as a federal judge.

—The busing issue—hottest in memory in 1972—died to a fizzle with the election gone.

—Opponents of the two-cent gasoline tax hike successfully petitioned onto the 1974 ballot a proposal to repeal the tax, then saw their efforts blocked in the courts.

—DEMOCRATS STARTED jockeying for their party's gubernatorial nomination in 1974, with Levin the early leader followed by former Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanagh and Crim.

—Justice Thomas Brennan quit the Supreme Court and was replaced by Appeals Court Judge John W. Fitzgerald.

It was a year of potpourri around the capital, filled with a little of something for everyone. And it will furnish the background for the elections of 1974.

As we see it

Romulus makes progress

Romulus Mayor Terry Troutt's priority resolution for this New Year might be worth $200,000 to the community.

Last month Troutt met with county officials to discuss the repayment of lost property taxes in the recent expansion moves at Metro Airport.

And the Romulus mayor reported back: "The meeting went well...and I think we won some concessions from the county."

Though the mayor admits "there's nothing official," he was optimistic because the county "seemed receptive."

Troutt's bargaining weapon was a book of facts; which proved, that since 1965, Romulus lost more than $200,000 in city, county and school tax payments...because of airport property expansion.

While holding his line, the mayor reiterated to the county officials: "The airport is here to Van Buren is right...

We commend the "no retreat" stand being taken by Van Buren Township officials in the continuing Willow Run Airport expansion controversy.

When the township announced it was going ahead with a $100,000-plus addition to the existing Township Hall, some residents raised questions on the merits of the hall project.

According to the county's airport expansion proposal for Willow Run, the Township Hall would have to go. So would homes, business

MORE THAN A FEW—More and more Western Wayne County men and women have joined the Marines in recent months, says Wayne recruiter Sgt. Bill Worrell. Worrell said recruits might be reacting to unemployment, but he hopes it's because they're attracted to the good training programs. He points to a plaque of pictures of Wayne, Westland, Romulus and other area residents who recently have joined the Marines Corps. —Roman Enterprise photo.

Because of layoffs Military service attractive

By CAROL THOMAS
Of The Roman-Enterprise Staff

Unemployment, layoffs in the automobile plants and a hike in military pay have made the military service a lot more attractive in recent months, area recruiters say.

Although Army recruitment statistics have not increased over previous levels in the area, the U.S. Marines are netting an out-of-the-ordinary number of enlistees in Western Wayne County, according to Wayne recruiter Marine Sgt. Bill Worrell.

Military pay jumped from $288 per month to $326 in October, free and clear of incidental expenses, since all branches of the military service take care of living expenses.

"IN THE wintertime the warm sun of San Diego looks more attractive," Worrell added.

Military recruiters agree recruiting always is brisk in the fall and winter with the falling off of job opportunities in construction work for the unskilled.

"The guy who worked all summer as a laborer gets to wondering how nice this is going to be all winter or else he gets laid off," Worrell said.

But increasing unemployment and the specter of more layoffs in the auto plants will be windfall for the military service, he predicted.

THE PAY for non-high school graduates is the same as high school graduates, if they can pass the military entrance test, Wayne's army recruiter Staff Sgt. George Fooks said.

Additional enticements in the all-volunteer army have made the military service an attractive place for those with the intelligence — but lack money for advanced education.

"Without the draft, military service has had to become worth it," Worrell said. "Perhaps the recruits we're getting might be a sign that it's worth it."

Residents join Armed Forces

Whether because of the lure of far-away places or the need for a steady job, area residents are making their presence known in today's Armed Forces.

From as close as Charleston, S.C. or as far as Frankfurt, Germany, men and women from New Boston, Romulus, Belleville and everywhere in between have taken to the new voluntary military service program in out-of-the-ordinary numbers.

Duty rosters for area residents are varying as their home bases and include such professions as air traffic controller and fireman apprentice.

Area residents now serving in the military are:

Navy Seaman Appren. Audrey G. Crump, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Crump of 19411 Cooper St., Romulus, has reported to Patrol Squadron 30 at the Naval Air Station in Patuxent River, Md.

Navy Lt. Larry L. Traskos, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Traskos of 16600 Sumpter Belleville, is serving with Patrol Squadron 46 at the Marine Corps Air Station in Iwakuni, Japan. During the first half of the six-month western Pacific deployment, he helped provide support for ocean surveillance and anti-submarine warfare training flights.

A 1960 graduate of Belleville High School, Lt. Traskos was graduated from Western Michigan University in 1968 with a bachelor of science degree.

He joined the Navy in 1966.

Pvt. Steven E. Thomas, 18, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Thomas, 28125 Meadow Hill, Romulus, completed a 10-week basic health science course at the Academy of Health Sciences of the U.S. Army, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.

Students learn to perform routine patient care and treatment duties in combat areas, hospital units, dispensaries, clinics and other medical facilities.

Marine PFC. Max J. McMenamy, the son of Mrs. Virginia M. McMenamy of 28046 Leroy, Romulus, has reported for duty at Marine Corps Base at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Navy Seaman Appren. Connie L. Gaines, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Bostain of 7350 Farnum, Romulus, has reported for duty at the Naval Station at Charleston, S.C.

Marine Lance Cpl. Elwood C. Bailey, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bailey of 43951 Burtrig Rd., Belleville, has reported for duty at the Marine Corps Air Station at Beaufort, S.C.

A 1971 graduate of Belleville High School, he joined the Marine Corps in March 1971.

Youth rally hosts speech by reformed convict-addict

Rev. John Gimenez, a former convict and drug addict, will be the featured speaker at a Jan. 5 rally sponsored by Huron Valley Youth for Christ.

Prior to 1962, Gimenez was a drug addict who had served time in such places as Sing Sing, Auburn, Elmira, Rikers Island and Tombs. Today, Mr. Gimenez is an ordained minister and presently living in Virginia Beach, Virginia.

He is pastor of Rock Church in Virginia Beach.

The "amazing change" in the life of John Gimenez is best described in his own words. "God brings His Holy Spirit into lives that are all messed up, and that bursting forth of Him in us is so beautiful and sweet. We struggle so hard for so long to keep our bodies satisfied, and He does it in a few minutes."

Also on the program that night is music by "New Jerusalem."

The rally will be held at Pioneer High School Auditorium, Ann Arbor.

Following the rally, a coffee house will be held at the high school recreation room with entertainment.

Admission for the rally is free, while admission for the coffee house is 99 cents.

Belleville to host seminar

A property state refund seminar will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 13 at the Belleville High School Auditorium.

The area director of the State Department of Treasury, Income Tax Division and other government officials will be present to explain the state's new property tax refund provisions and procedures, says Ralph Hedman, treasurer of Van Buren Township.

All interested persons especially senior citizens and veterans are urged to attend. Assistance in making out new property tax refund forms will be available.

Earthquake damage

Scientists estimate that 1,000 earthquakes cause damage every year, and 100,000 can be felt.

THE FINAL WEEKS of 1974 — a memorable year in many, many areas — found families celebrating the holidays in various ways. Christmas, as usual, was a time for the gathering of the clan along with traditional turkey and ham dinners complete with all kinds of homemade desserts and goodies.

Parties, too, served to bring friends together once again, either at home or away. All in all, it WAS a time for warmth, love and good cheer.

Gutierrez clan enjoys festivities

AMONG THE couples to invite 'the family' for Christmas Day were Gene and Elaine Gutierrez of Bemis Road. Their get-together was one of the largest in the area since about half (or 40) of Gene's immediate family turned out for the cop sit-down dinner at six in the evening.

Gene, the youngest of 11 children, played host to his parents, the Paul Gutierrez of Belleville as well as the Albert Gutierrez family and the Prim Gutierrez and the married members of their family. The William Laiklams were also out from Dearborn, the Matthew Villarreal family from Detroit and the Ray Laurmans from Taylor.

The reunion, a first for little Ann Marie Gutierrez (Gene and Elaine's baby) — the newest member of the clan — also helped initiate the host couple's big new family room. Santa's appearance after dinner completed the picture for 1973.

Families gather for Christmas

AS AT THANKSGIVING, Ermil and Sally Jones took to the highways and headed for Ohio — this time Lima — where they spent from Monday to Wednesday at Sal's brother's home. Robert and Sue Mayo and their two children welcomed the Joneses and their trio — Sheryl, Linda and Kenn — as well as Ermil's mother, Mrs. Edith Jones of Monroe.

HOME FOR the first time in several years (Christmas 'Pasts' including Hawaii and the Rose Bowl), the Chet Kosin family sat down to dinner en masse Christmas Day after which the younger set went their own individual ways. Sunday the group drove out to their cottage on Leann near Irish Hills and enjoyed snow activities and, during the night.

Over the New Year week-end Chet and Mary traveled to Bridgeport for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maziarz.

THE PARK E. GREGORYS who had a busy, busy holiday season which included the marriage of their daughter, Joyce, to Scott Silvenis, were guests of their daughter and son-in-law, Gloria and Richard Gardner of Chaney Street, on December 21. The occasion was an early Christmas party for the two families which also marked the birthday of Mrs. Gregory.

On the 22nd, the Gardners left to spend the holidays with his parents, the Cade Gardners at Mio. In the meantime, the Gregorys and the Stanley Silvenis' spent Christmas Day with their children, the newlyweds, in East Lansing. The younger Silvenis' returned to Belleville with them for the remainder of the holidays.

THE ARTHUR SHEPHERDS had their family together for Christmas dinner and traditional tree festivities with the Ferguson trio — Leslie, Shawn and Shari — putting the real 'zip' into the proceedings. With their parents, the Roger Fergusons, aunt and uncle, Pat and Jim Shephard, and uncle Brian, they opened gifts and enjoyed lots of their grandmother's homemade goodies.

In the evening the Fergusons joined his parents, the Fay Fergusons of Judd Road, for more holiday sharing. In this case, the group had the fun of giving and receiving special handmade and homemade items — artwork, culinary specialties and woodcrafts being among the handi-work employed by the group.

Polish tradition observed by family

AN OLD POLISH tradition called 'wigilia' (the vigil of Christmas) was revived when members of the Januszyk family, about 45 in all, got together for a reunion Christmas Eve at the S.S.C.C. Hall in Sumpter.

Master-minded by Stanley Januszyk, the custom was 'resurrected' in honor of the family matriarch, 87-year old Kathryn Januszyk, whose tears, we hear, were evidence of the deep meaning 'wigilia' has for her.

Together for the first time in some 11 years, the assembly included Stan's wife, Barb, and their daughters, as well as other Bellevillites: John and Clara Januszyk, Frank and Norma Januszyk and their family (Connie with her date, Sam Rochon), Joe and Marlene Dapsi and children and her mother, Mrs. Kirby Wilson, the Alec Januszyks and son, Joey, the Les Powells and Jennifer, the Stan Siwas, Stan and Joyce Sliwa and their three (Tina and Cindy with friends, Lee and Bud), the Jim Shephards, and the Stan Pietrzaks.

Flying in from Chicago, Dorothy Crider joined other out-of-towners, Mary Matowski of Dearborn, Virginia (Peach) Piskorski from Ypsilanti, the John Bazydio family and the Joe Dapsis of Riverview.

Capping the festivities was the arrival of Santa Claus who had gifts for the younger set as well as stockings and candy to distribute.

'Sugarplum' theme used for party

ANOTHER PARTY dotting the holiday calendar was the December 15 gala held at the Fred Stoyenoff home on Sunrise Lane. Jennifer Lynn, their seven-year old daughter, was hostess at a Christmas 'sugarplum' party during the afternoon.

The floor-to-ceiling rec room tree was 'a vision of sugarplums' with the bar area being transformed into 'Santa's sugarplum shop' for the day. Apothecary jars were filled with candies and cookies with popcorn confections ready to be nibbled on then or to be tucked into a 'sugarplum sack' to be enjoyed later. Bingo and several other games were played followed by a buffet luncheon and gift exchange.

One of the highlights of the afternoon turned out to be a peek at Jennifer's scale-model doll house decorated for the occasion with wreaths, lights and Christmas trees. The girls were enchanted to discover that the house and its furnishings were complete down to the smallest detail, with even a holiday turkey roasting in the oven while tiny pies and loaves of bread cooled on the sideboard.

The lucky little girls making up the guest list included Cathi Hable, Carol Carlson, Janice and Laurie Burgess, Gila Dorostkar, Jacqueline DeFrancesco, Lois Otto, Jennifer Touse, and Kathy and Leslie Zager.

It's a boy for Gawackis

Richard and Claudia Gawacki of Ann Arbor are announcing the birth of their couple's first child, the new mother being the former Claudia Rouster. The proud grandparents are Mrs. Lois Rouster of Belleville, Leroy Rouster of Detroit the Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Gwacki of Beverly Hills, Michigan.

Tamara Ann is her name

There's a new baby out at 40340 Harris Road, Belleville, the home of Richard and Marlene Clark. The little girl arrived December 13 at Beyer Hospital and weighed in at an even eight pounds. Titled Tamara Ann, she is the little sister of 17-month old Richard Jr.

Grandparents of the children are Mr. and Mrs. James Sykes and Mrs. Aileen Clark all of Belleville.

MR. AND MRS. SCOTT A. SILVENIS

Silvenis-Gregory vows read in East Lansing

Michigan State University students, Joyce Leah Gregory and Scott Alford Silvenis, exchanged wedding bands and nuptial vows in East Lansing December 8. The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints was the setting for their twelve o'clock noon ceremony. Elder Brian Croft, president of the M.S.U. branch of the church, presided at the rite before some 45 guests from Belleville, Jackson, Flint, Taylor, Wayne, Ypsilanti, and East Lansing.

Lavender, pink and white mums along with Christmas greenery provided the background for the wedding with Mrs. Keith Bodrero playing the organ.

Bellevillites, Mr. and Mrs. Park E. Gregory of 375 Brain Avenue and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Silvenis of 47745 Bemis Road, are parents of the young couple.

ESCORTED UP the aisle by her father, Joyce was gownned in a white lace creation designed with a high stand-up collar, small leg o'mutton sleeves and toe-touching skirt. Complimenting her gown were a small diamond necklace and a pair of her mother's white rose carved ivory earrings borrowed for good luck.

She wore a waist-length mantilla trimmed in wide lace to match her dress and carried a colonial bouquet of dark red roses surrounded by white carnations, variegated holly leaves and Christmas greens.

Mrs. Richard D. Gardner of Belleville was her sister's honor attendant in a frock of ruby red velvet fashioned along the same lines as the bridal gown. Her headdress was comprised of tiny red ribbons and holly leaves tucked into her Gibson Girl hair style. Completing her ensemble was a colonial arrangement of rose-pink carnations encircled by variegated holly leaves and deep rose streamers.

Best man was Keith Bodrero of East Lansing.

FOR HER daughter's wedding, Mrs. Gregory chose to wear an aqua street-length coat dress with white and silver accessories while the bridegroom's mother appeared in a coat-dress ensemble in powder blue with darker blue and silver accessories. Both were honored with corsages of pink and rose-toned carnations accented with variegated holly leaves.

At the reception, which followed in the church social room, Mrs. Brian Croft, a friend of the bride from East Lansing, cut the wedding cake which was set in a wreath of holly and Christmas greens. Donna Silvenis, sister of the bridegroom, presided at the punch bowl.

Special guests at the wedding included the couple's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald G. Bradley Sr. of Jackson, Mrs. E.F. Gregory of Flint and Mrs. Jeannette Wargo of Belleville. Each of the grandmothers was presented with a white carnation corsage and Mr. Bradley with a pink carnation boutonniere.

ON LEAVING the church, the new Mrs. Silvenis changed to a deep violet velvet dress to which she pinned a corsage of white carnations. The newlyweds, who plan to honeymoon at a later date, are now at home at 939-F Cherry Lane, East Lansing.

Both 1972 graduates of Belleville High School, Joyce and Scott are in their sophomore year at State. Both are employed at the Bulletin Office of the Department of Agriculture at MSU and both are majoring in packaging engineering.

Know your fabrics

Sheer, billowy fabrics may give a garment that soft, feminine look, but some of them have shortcomings that a consumer should be aware of.

"Crepe, georgette, crepe-de-chine and chiffon are being used to achieve the soft look in fashion," says Bernetta Kahabka, extension clothing and textiles specialist at Michigan State University.

These fabrics may be treated during weaving with a solvent-soluble sizing that can be lost during cleaning, she explains. This can result in limpness, yarn slippage, seam slippage and pulled yarns that cannot be mended.

These fabrics generally do not perform well when cut on the bias or pleated, the specialist says. On the bias they tend to stretch, and they usually will not hold a pleat well.

"If you're shopping for ready-made garments, read labels and hangtags," the specialist suggests, "and avoid garments of these fabrics cut on the bias or pleated."

"If you're shopping for fabric to make your own clothing, learn all you can about the fabric, match fabric and pattern carefully and be sure you get a permanent care label so you will know how the fabric should be cared for."

research," she stated.

TO CLINICAL NURSES who specialize in complex patient care, and to nurses who produce results from their research, is added a third development, according to Dean Carolyn K. Davis of the U-M School of Nursing and Joyce Crane, associate professor of nursing. A third role in the new breed of nurses is the nurse practitioner.

Although not a new phenomenon, the nurse practitioner has the professional capabilities for meeting many health care needs of people which have not been previously met. According to Dean Davis and Prof. Crane, she is getting more and more attention. She may be the answer to the doctor shortage. She is usually the first person the patient sees; can take medical histories and perform certain health assessments; counsels and refers patients to professionals whose expertise is required; and she is effective with the aging and dying.

More than illustrating the research contributions of nurses, Prof. Swain said evidence was convincing that continued research in nursing care of patients could "shorten the length of hospitalization."

New twists on a dessert classic

Crepe Brulee is a classic dessert, one so good that 19th century homemakers coped with open-hearth fires, vanilla beans, and sugar shortages in order to enjoy the smooth custard with its pretty broiled brown sugar topping. Life in the kitchen has improved in innumerable ways, and now life with Crepe Brulee is even easier and nicer too.

First of the new tricks is the use of convenient egg custard mix for the basic custard, which eliminates all the guesswork in that stage. Your refrigerator helps to execute the second trick, which is to chill the custard after it's been poured into a shallow baking dish. The prettiest twist of all is to serve the dish as Fruited Brulee, with a colorful garnish of thawed frozen fruits such as red raspberries.

Along with Fruited Crepe Brulee, many other delicious desserts, both plain and fancy, can come from a package of egg custard mix. Use it as a base for individual molds, garnished with prepared whipped topping and grated chocolate. Or mold the custard and serve with your favorite fruit sauce.

There is no end to the many ways custard can be used. Just change the serving dish, or try a new topping or garnish to create your very own custard specialty.

Fruited Creme Brulee

2 packages (3 oz each) egg custard mix
2 cups milk
2 cups (1 pint) heavy cream
2 teaspoons vanilla
1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
2 packages (10 oz. each) frozen red raspberries in quick thaw pouch, thawed

Combine custard mix, milk, and cream in saucepan. Bring quickly to a boil, stirring constantly. (Mixture will be thin.) Stir in vanilla. Pour into shallow baking dish or 8-inch pie pan. Chill until set. Sprinkle with brown sugar. Broil 7 to 8 inches from heat until sugar begins to melt; then chill thoroughly. To serve, spoon into dessert dishes and top with thawed fruit. Makes 4 cups or 8 servings.

SIGHS OF RELIEF—Tiny tot Jill Slatter gives an expressive sigh of relief with the conclusion of her mother's hectic Christmas shopping. Color is added to sonic sewing

In 1970, the big news in new sewing technology was sonic sewing — clothing construction without needle, thread or bobbin.

In 1973, the big news is sonic sewing in color.

Bernetta Kahabka, extension textiles and clothing specialist at Michigan State University, explains that sonic sewing can be used only on synthetic fabrics and blends of at least 65 percent synthetic fibers. The fabric is fed between the sewing horn and fuses the material in the pattern of the wheel.

To achieve permanent sonic stitching in color, colored sonic foil is fed through the machine along with the fabric. The liquefied fibers in the fabric mix with foil pigment to produce a line of colored stitching that is an integral part of the fused fabric.

Emerick's 'first' is James Jr.

James Douglas Jr. is the name chosen for the new son born November 11 to James and Roberta Emerick of 33 Birch Drive, Belleville. Their first child, the baby arrived at Hutzel Hospital in Detroit and weighed in at an even seven pounds.

His proud grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John Emerick and Mr. and Mrs. Desmond Bauman, all of Belleville.

CREAMY FINALE — For a cool, creamy finale to any meal, be it meat-and-potatoes or a casserole, Fruited Creme Brulee will draw the ooohs and aahs from your family and guests. Its simplicity and elegance combine for an easy-to-prepare dessert. Make it with egg custard mix, quickly cooked with milk and cream and poured into a shallow baking dish or a pretty flameproof tart pan. (Courtesy Jell-O Golden Egg Custard Mix.)

Tropic warmth haunts living in the Bahamas

By BEN NATHANSON
Panax Staff Writer

NASSAU, Bahamas — Air Jamaica has moved this winter playland in the sun an hour closer to blustery Michigan with the inauguration of a daily non-stop flight from Detroit.

It eliminates the Florida stopover and shortens the flying time to three hours for Michigan vacationers.

The direct flight leaves Detroit Metropolitan Airport daily at 9:30 a.m., arriving at Nassau at 12:30 p.m. The return flight leaves at 5 p.m. and reaches Detroit at 8 p.m.

THE FLIGHT IS a new effort to tap the tourists trade to these sub-tropical islands, hard by the Gulf Stream where the winter temperatures range between 70 and 80 degrees.

Tourism in the Bahamas has blossomed over the past decade with new clusters of plush hotels, golf courses, eating places and Atlantic beaches of gleaming sand.

The real or fancied resistance to Nassau because of the feeling of hostility expressed by its people has been dissipating and was non-existent during a five-day pre-Christmas visit.

THE STRAIN WAS a holdover from three centuries of British rule which ended July 10, 1973, when the Bahamas became an independent nation.

The new nation is settling into a modern culture and economy of its own, based largely on the tourist trade.

The official Ministry of Tourism here rolls out the red carpet for visitors from the United States. Visitors do not need a passport or visa, only a birth certificate or voter registration card as proof of nationality.

And it's a quick 10 miles from the airport to downtown to the Nassau Beach Hotel, one of the plushiest on New Providence Island, on Cable Beach.

The hotel's private beach of white sand is more than twice the length of a football field. It has three tennis courts, a swimming pool and, a few blocks away, an 18 hole golf course.

RESTAURANTS OFFER gourmet dishes, including continental and native specialties. From dusk to dawn, the night is filled with the soft sounds of Calypso, rock, folk, and steel drum music.

The horse racing season starts in January and the islands have seen a revival of polo, a pastime brought to the islands by British army officers.

Across from the hotel, Britain's Prince Charles played in a polo match as part of the Bahamas' independence celebration.

Casino gambling is under strict government control and permanent residents are barred from the tables. Touring Michigan newsmen were invited to Le Cabaret at the Paradise Island Hotel for a great floor show and a fling at the blackjack tables and the slot machines.

THERE WAS THE FLIGHT to Freeport-Lucaya on Grand Bahama Island, 30-minute trip, just off the coast of West Palm Beach, Florida, for a look at five 18-hole golf courses.

The newsmen visited the exotic International Bazaar in Freeport, a four million venture sprawling over 10 acres.

The bazaar is an around-the-world shopping center of shops transplanted from Hong Kong, Japan, Thailand, India, Turkey, Africa, Israel, France, Spain, Mexico, Argentina and other countries.

There is the Garden of the Groves five miles from the center of Freeport. It has a high overlook which contains three waterfalls, a small one and two pools. The waterfalls empty into a widening lake in the center of the garden, giving it a Latin American aura.

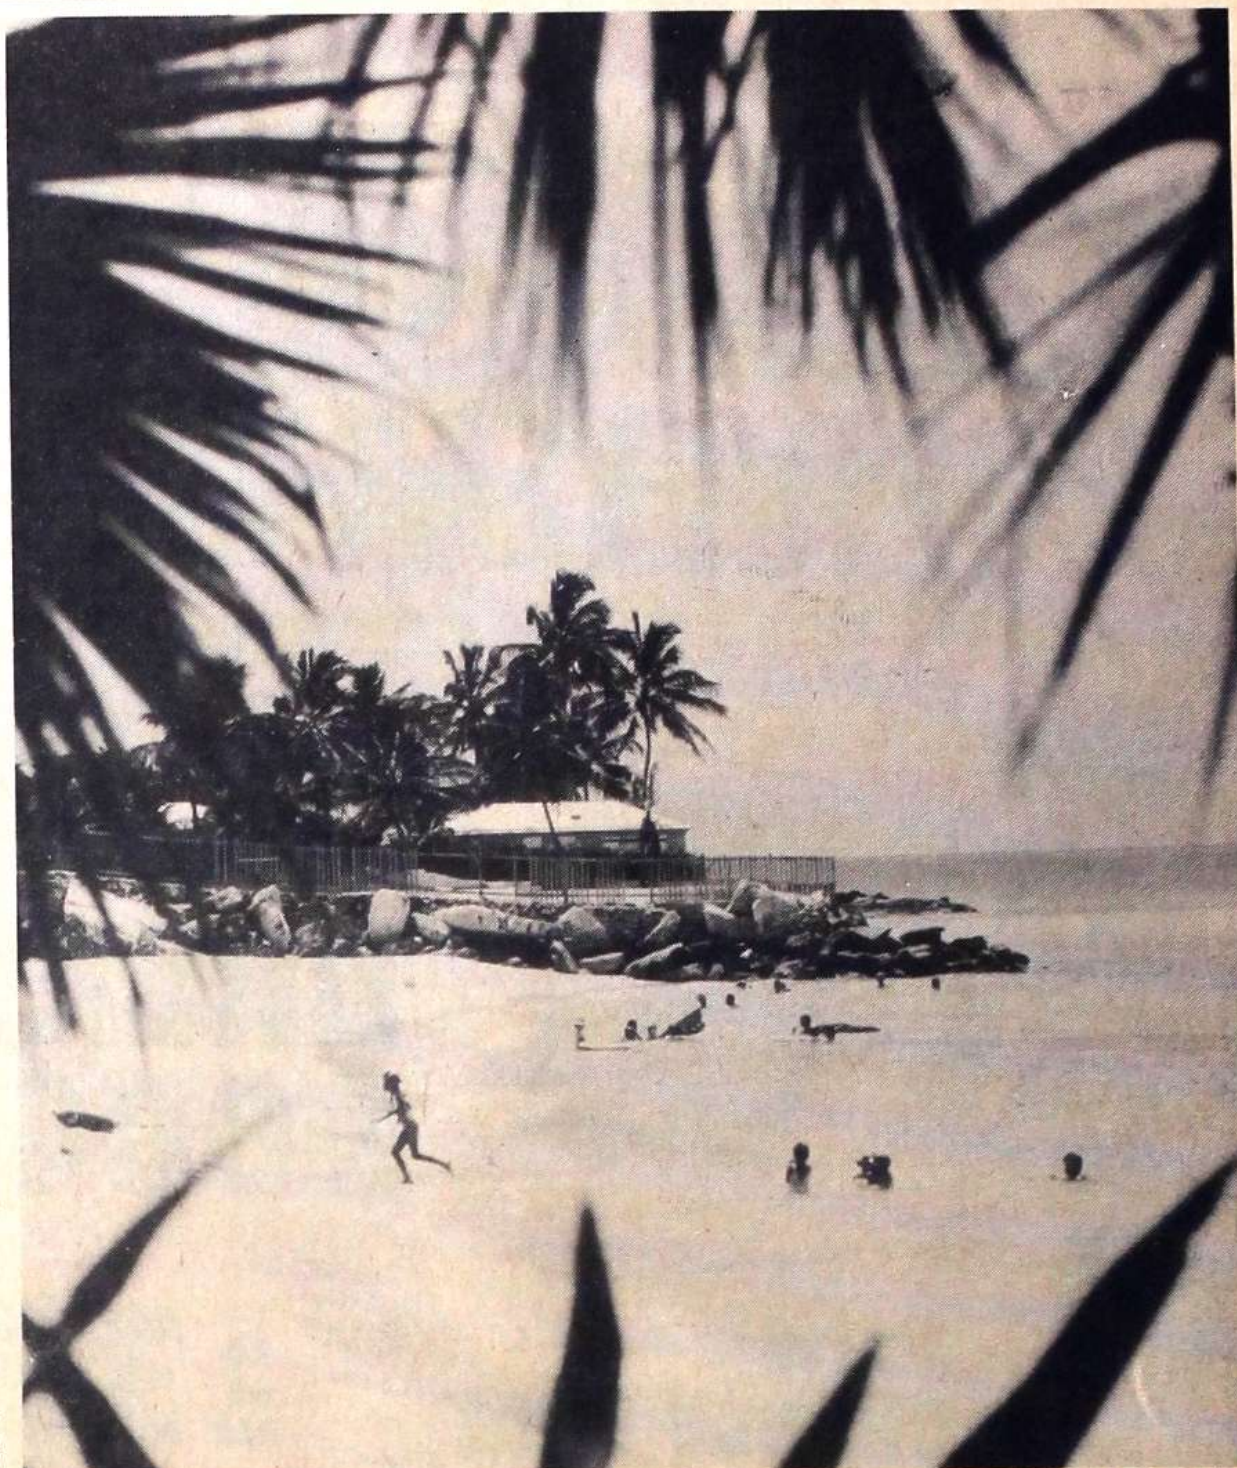

The garden was named for Wallace and Gergette Groves, creators of the island city and covers 11 acres of undulating terrain next to the beautiful Shannon Golf and Country Club.

THE ISLANDS are booming and more flights and more extensive accommodations are being planned despite the energy crunch. The Rotterdam, a Dutch steamship with more than 1,000 passengers capacity, pulled into port for an overnight stop on the way to Bermuda.

Clement T. Maynard, minister of tourism, told the newsmen that the Bahamas are staging an all-out campaign to attract people who normally vacation in Europe.

The word from the Grand Bahama Development Co. is that it took Christopher Columbus 33 days and nights to find the Bahamas in 1492.

It takes three hours from Detroit.

ON THE SUNNY SIDE — Frolic and fun is the key word for young and old alike in the Bahamas where blue water lap golden beaches. Add a touch of tropical warmth and the days pass you by in the haze of sun-drenched days.

Terms to be negotiated

HCMA plans to lease Belle Isle

The Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority (HCMA) has presented a new proposal that would permit most of Belle Isle Park to be leased to the authority from Detroit "under terms yet to be negotiated," with the HCMA becoming responsible for operations and maintenance of the 1,000-acre park site located in the Detroit River.

The plan was presented to several city and county officials Friday.

KEY POINTS in the proposal, which probably will require study by several Detroit departments, are:

—The authority would become primarily responsible for the operations and maintenance of Belle Isle Park.

—The authority would have little funds available for construction or major developments on the island.

—In operating, maintaining and policing Belle Isle, the authority would relieve Detroit of functions that they (Detroit) estimate presently cost about $1,600,000.

—Detroit would retain some service and utility functions as well as continuing to operate the Children's Zoo, the aquarium, the Dossin Museum, the conservatory and perhaps other facilities, depending upon final negotiations. These items, and perhaps others, could be excluded from the lease between the city and HCMA.

—In effect, by the proposed lease, the island's facilities and operation to some extent would be shared by both Detroit and the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority.

—The authority expressed its desire to work with the city's parks and recreation department, Friends of Belle Isle and other interested citizens to help achieve a renaissance of Belle Isle Park through this new proposal.

A HCMA spokesman said that the financial position of the authority has been improved by several factors, making it possible for the authority to propose the operations and maintenance of Belle Isle Park.

These factors include tighter park operations at the Metroparks, less need for new developments or improvements in existing Metroparks, extending the timetable for land acquisition for future sites and increased emphasis on park revenues including parking charges at the major Metroparks in 1974.

In January, 1970, the HCMA announced a plan to redevelop, maintain and operate Belle Isle which called for extensive construction and redevelopment at a cost of 39 million dollars over a period of 10 to 15 years which was a part of an overall expansion program which also called for acquisition and development of three new Metroparks in the ring around Detroit, if a millage increase was approved.

In August, 1970 Detroit voters approved "the idea" of leasing Belle Isle to HCMA, but in August, 1972, voters in the counties of Wayne, Macomb, Oakland, Livingston and Washtenaw turned down the proposed ¼ mill property tax increase.

The HCMA board reviewed the short-range course of the authority without the increased millage and decided: to use available funding to acquire land for future parks which might otherwise become unavailable; to continue their interest in Belle Isle, studying the possibilities for a less ambitious effort, and to seek additional sources of revenue for the park system, thus parking fees in 1974 at the major Metroparks.

THE SPOKESMAN said land acquisition already has started at two future sites, including North Branch Metropark (in Ray Township), in Macomb County and at Indian Springs Metropark (in Spring and White Lake Townships) in Oakland County, while Mill Creek Metropark (in Lima and Freedom Townships) west of Ann Arbor in Washtenaw County has been designated as a Land and Water Conservation Fund Project, which currently is being evaluated by the U.S. Bureau of Outdoor Recreation. These are long-range projects, with land acquisition expected to take from five to 10 years or longer.

The fuel shortage which restricts travel makes it probable that the Metroparks will receive even heavier use by southeast Michigan residents who will not be able to travel up north and who seek a variety of outdoor recreation activities largely not available in city parks, he added.

The authority was further encouraged to become responsible for Belle Isle because of facts revealed in an independent research report entitled "Detroit Five-County Area Parks and Recreation Survey" prepared last September by Market Opinion Research to determine community awareness, attitudes and behaviors toward the HCMA and its nine parks, which included questions pertaining to Belle Isle.

In general, the Market Opinion Research parks survey indicates a more widespread use of the Metroparks and a higher degree of citizen approval of the Metroparks than even the staunchest HCMA supporters have claimed. Those who use the Metroparks praise them highly for their cleanliness, quiet, spaciousness and beauty, finding little to criticize and rate them as "excellent."

Spartans win tourney

If you want to stop Cherry Hill, you have to stop Bob Fowler.

Westland John Glenn and Wayne Memorial's basketball teams certainly won't argue that theory, especially after the beatings the two suffered at the sizzling shooting hand of the Spartan junior forward in last weekend's Cherry Hill Christmas Tournament.

After pumping in a school-record 37 points Thursday in a 73-71 conquest of John Glenn, Fowler took center stage again Saturday night and canned 31 tallies in leading Cherry Hill past Wayne, 69-66, in the tourney's championship game.

GLENN, meanwhile, handed Belleville its second loss of the tournament, 90-67, in the consolation game prior to the finals. Belleville had fallen to Wayne, 69-62, in the opening round.

Wayne tried everything it could think of to neutralize Fowler in the title contest, but

In Wayne Invitational High-class mat field awaits cringing Tigers

"I think we might get kicked around the mat a little bit," said Belleville High varsity wrestling coach Gerald Malecek in a very frank analysis of Saturday's prestigious Wayne Invitational wrestling meet, which will feature the elite of Class A wrestling in Michigan.

Along with heavy underdog Belleville in the tournament will be defending state class A champion Adrian, Detroit Catholic Central, currently ranked top in the state, North Farmington, Ann Arbor Pioneer, Dearborn Heights Crestwood, Garden City East and host Wayne Memorial.

Pistons announce ticket specials

It'll be Family Bargain Day at Cobo Arena on Sunday, Jan. 20, when the Detroit Pistons host the Kansas City-Omaha Kings at 2 p.m.

The Pistons have made the occasion "Family Day" in recognition of their only Sunday matinee of the season.

For Family Day a special of $1 per each member of the family—with a limit of eight tickets per family—will prevail for reserved seats.

To obtain Family Day orders, a representative of the family must follow one of two procedures:

Wayne, Adrian and Catholic Central are favorites. Wayne won last year's tourney over the same eight-team field and has suffered its only dual meet defeat this season at the hands of top-ranked Catholic Central.

Belleville stands 1-0 in dual meet action and will have its hands full with such elite company. The Tigers finished eighth last year.

"We could be hampered since it is right after vacation and some of the kids may not be completely in shape yet and a little rusty," warned Malecek. "I would say we'll be lucky to finish fourth or fifth, but it would be safe to say we'll place about five wrestlers."

Don Haney, coach of the host Zebras, isn't quite as sure of his team's chances as Malecek seems to be of Wayne.

"I think we've got an outside chance of winning it again," he said. "Of course, Catholic Central is the only team that's beaten us this year. It will be a very tough and close meet."

Wayne is 6-1 in dual meets and has won three tournaments.

Swimmers stroke to raise funds

Who says kids nowadays don't want to work for things? Don't bring that argument up around Belleville High School, where a group of 50 swimmers from the boys and girls swimming teams staged a 72-hour "swim-a-thon" to raise money for the school's swimming program and new equipment.

According to Sam Vicchy, boys' varsity coach, the swim-officialing of two of the referees, who assessed 25 fouls against Belleville and four against John Glenn.

Belleville's Tom Niemi, incidentally, was one of the less vocal coaches on the subject publically, well-aware that complaining about officials usually puts the tag of "bush" on the coach. John Glenn's Gordie Davis, however, ripped the referees despite winning the game.

"I COULDN'T believe the calls those guys made," exclaimed Davis, "especially the ones against Belleville."

Davis and Niemi cited numerous occasions when "unnecessary" fouls were called, and Niemi added that Wayne's Bill Hawley had echoed their disgust in the referees. According to Niemi, all three coaches had requested prior to the tournament that the two referees be replaced, since they reportedly had been accused of poor officiating in the past.

"I think it's just a shame when the kids play their hearts out in a game but because of the officiating neither team can really relish the victory," said Niemi.

"I've never criticized officials before, but something has to be done about this. We all work hard to display sportsmanship and this happens. What can I tell my players after they played so hard?"

MICHIGAN'S referee-licensing test for boys high school games is reportedly rather lenient, and Niemi insists that the state act to "weed out" the poor officials.

"The state has to take a stand somewhere. We, as coaches, can't seem to get anywhere—maybe the media can get our point across," he said.

In any case, Glenn grabbed a 20-12 first quarter lead and stretched that to 42-26 at the half, working successfully inside on the feed to center Brian Kaluzny. Kaluzny finished with a game-high 28 points.

The Rockets held a 61-46 third-quarter lead and coasted through the final period.

BESIDES Kaluzny, Glenn's balanced attack saw Jeff Brittain net 16, Jim Kholmman 14 and Harry Polovino 12.

Huron 'reverses field' in Carlson tournament

To an unfamiliar basketball fan viewing the New Boston Huron cage team for the first time in last weekend's Gibraltar Carlson Tournament, it would almost appear as if the Chiefs field two completely different varsity fives.

But, alas, it was the same quintet in both games Friday and Saturday—just a different look.

Huron came up horribly flat for its opening round test against Dearborn Heights Annapolis, losing 57-47, then burst out of its shell to gun down Southgate, 67-46, in Saturday's consolation game.

"WE WERE just awful against Annapolis," sized up Chief coach Andy Herman. "Our defense was poor and our rebounding was rotten,

Skiers can save fuel...and ski at state's scenic winter lodges

Skiers should be able to pursue their sport this winter if they take steps now to reduce non-essential car fuel consumption, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

In bygone winters, the biggest fears of ski lodge operators were rain and prolonged warm spells.

Prior to the suggested Sunday gas ban and the 10-gallon-a-week consumption limit by motorists, it was projected by Auto Club that 460,000 skiers would spend $170 million in Michigan this winter, a five percent increase over last season.

CURRENTLY, ski operators are reluctant to state how much business will be affected this winter because of the uncertain fuel situation. Most ski lodge managers are optimistic and to reduce fuel consumption," states Joseph Ratke, Auto Club touring manager. "Unless skiers help save gas, federal regulations could

'The current fuel crisis will require sacrifices by the skier to reduce fuel consumption.'

feel that the skier will take charter buses or use car pools to continue making ski trips. "The current fuel crisis will require sacrifices by the skier result that will severely limit all recreational travel."

Ratke suggests that skiers take these steps to help eliminate the need for gas rationing and higher taxes, or both:

-Car pools for all ski trips.
-Fewer long-distance ski trips, but longer stays at lodges to compensate.

-Forming groups and clubs to utilize buses for ski trips.
-Driving 55 miles per hour or slower on the highways at all times.

-Cutting travel near home by making fewer shopping trips and consolidating other trips.

National AAA was told by federal energy advisors that if motorists could voluntarily cut gas consumption 25 percent, rationing would not be needed.

"IF SKIERS UTILIZE car pools to and from work and substantially reduce the number of non-essential family trips near home, enough gas can be saved so that trips to lodges are possible," states Ratke.

The current gasoline crisis is the second adverse blow that ski lodge operators have received during the past year. The first setback was the mild winter last season that reduced Michigan's skiable days up to 25 percent.

Last winter, many of the state's ski areas were set back financially by the unseasonable warm spell and rain that halted operations throughout much of Michigan during January and March. LODGES IN SOUTHERN Michigan that normally had 100 ski days dropped to 80 operational days while those in the north that expected 130 ski days were fortunate to have 100 days.

Although not directly attributable to the brief ski season last winter, there are four lodges - all located in West Michigan - not reopening this winter.

Two of the closed lodges - Big M, near Manistee, and Chimney Corners, near Frankfort - had too few patrons to continue. Both areas are in the process of converting to private lodges. Binder Park, near Battle Creek, and Briar Hill, near Cadillac, found making needed improvements to meet state requirements for lifts too costly.

DESPITE THOSE four closings, fears of fuel shortages and cutbacks in expansion at some lodges due to last winter's warm weather, skiers will find improvements at 30 of the state's 63 ski areas open to the general public.

Michigan has 95 ski lifts in operation this winter, two more than a year ago. There are 52 bar lifts as compared with 40 last winter, and the number of runs has increased from 667 to 675. The number of lodges with heated outdoor pools has jumped from nine to 11.

A complete listing of all facilities available at the state's 63 major ski lodges are contained on the accompanying guide. When this year's guide is compared with last year, improvements are noticeable in every section of the state.

Nine of the 28 ski areas in West Michigan have made notable improvements.

Boyer Mountain has just opened a Convention and Ski Centre complex.

BOYNE HIGHLANDS has moved about one-half million yards of dirt to create a new Katherine Run. It will be serviced by a four-place chairlift.

man and played good defense," he said. "We fronted them inside and made them work to get a shot off. But the big difference was that we really banged the boards for a change."

Huron corralled 42 rebounds to Southgate's 21. The shooting was still lacking, however, as Huron shot 31 per cent and Southgate 25.

The Chiefs raced to a 21-11 first quarter lead and were coasting by halftime, 38-22. Southgate then managed to outscore Huron 10-8 but lost the touch in the final period when Huron registered a 21-14 margin.

HURON'S balanced attack was led by Richert and Jim Pidgeon with 14 each and Bennet with 13. Junior Roy Blount came off the bench to score nine points and rip down 15 rebounds in the winning effort.

Huron is 6-2 and travels to Monroe Catholic Central Friday.

Pair deadlocks in Nordic skiing

GAYLORD, Mich. (AP) — Tim Caldwell and Bill Koch, a pair of U.S. Cross-Country Ski Team members from Vermont, finished in a virtual tie Thursday in the Samsonite Nordic Series 10-Kilometer Race at the Michaywe resort near here.

Chicago's Jana Hlavaty captured the women's five kilometer race.

Koch, of Guilford, Vt., took the lead in the first two laps, but Caldwell, of Putney, Vt., caught him in the second lap and matched him stride for stride into the finish area where they slid across together, both timed at 33 minutes, 15 seconds.

In a major upset in the women's division, Mrs. Hlavaty defeated series leader Martha Rockwell in 16:23. Miss Rockwell, also of Putney, had won all five previous Nordic races this season but was eight seconds off the pace Thursday for her first defeat.

Mrs. Hlavaty, a member of the 1964 Czechoslovakian Olympic Team, joined the U.S. team three years ago.

Tigers fall

Belleville's Easley's brothers, Walt and Dennis, pumped in 20 and 16 points, respectively, in leading the Tigers.

In Belleville's opening round loss to Wayne, the Tigers ran into a cold-shooting Wayne 18-14 in the second to grasp a 34-all halftime tie. But Wayne was slightly hotter than the Tigers the rest of the way to cruise to the win.

Belleville's Mel Abraham and Dennis Easley keyed the balanced Tiger scoring attack with 17 points apiece—the same total for Wayne's Glenn Ambrose.

Belleville travels to Livonia Bentley Friday as Suburban Eight League action resumes at 8 p.m.

Absent 1 day! Owen posts best record in House

A report for the first 11 months of the 1973 session of the legislature shows State Rep. Gary M. Owen (D-Ypsilanti) with one of the best attendance records among the 110 members of the Michigan House of Representatives.

The report also listed no expense funds drawn by Owen for any business trips either inside or outside of Michigan. The House was in session for 115 days during the first eleven months of the year. Records show Owen as being present for 114 days, for a percentage of 99.1 per cent of the session days.

There were, during those eleven months, 786 roll call (officially recorded) votes. Owen recorded 782 votes, for a 99.5 per cent of the votes taken.

The only state-paid expenses drawn by Owen were $156.83 to attend meetings of the House Appropriations Committee held at times when the Legislature was not in session. The money covers Owen's traveling to and from and staying in Lansing for the out-session Appropriations Committee meetings.

Owen's overall expenses rate among the lowest in the House for the period. "I feel that when the people of my district elected me to represent them in Lansing, they expected me to be in Lansing, Owen said. "This is what I have tried to do. They also expected me to be there to vote and represent their interests, and I have tried to do that. As for expenses, I do not believe that it is necessary for a legislator to take a lot of trips, and especially outstate trips, to be effective for his people."

Schools may be victims of gas priority struggle

The National Parent-Teacher Association has urged local member groups to exert every effort to ensure that adequate attention is given to school needs during the nation's fuel crisis.

The organization with multi-million membership is concerned that the public schools may be "sitting ducks" in the priority struggle for scarce fuels.

"The PTA will, of course, encourage parents, teachers, administrators and boards of education to cooperate in the need to conserve energy," said Grace Baisinger, coordinator of legislative activity for the PTA. "However, we would hope that we meet this need without drastically changing the educational program and school calendars."

Romulus city budget Audit shows weakness

The audit of Romulus' general fund for fiscal 1972-73 has been completed and the city treasurer is checking the results.

"I'm concerned with the findings," said Romulus Treasurer Lewkowicz. "But I don't intend to take any action on them until I have consulted with department heads."

The treasurer said the audit showed areas where the city could strengthen its money handling procedures.

He added that he will put off any immediate action until he has received the entire audit of the city's books.

The audit of the water and sewer funds is expected to be turned in sometime next week.

At the same time the city is receiving its yearly audit, Lewkowicz said the inventory of the city's assets is proceeding at a good pace.

"We've completed the portion on funds," Lewkowicz said. "And we're just beginning the physical inventory."

"Through the process, we'll be evaluating administrative procedures, and will make recommendations on ways departments may be able to improve their operations."

No date has been set for the completion of the inventory but Lewkowicz said it must be completed before he will implement any permanent changes in the city's financial handling.

Some plans being considered include curtailing hours of work, closing schools, reducing highway speed limits, prohibiting outdoor advertising and improving rations on scarce fuel.

Belleville resident is page

A Belleville youth will be one of 51 high school students from across the nation who will serve as pages in the United States House of Representatives.

The youth, 17-year-old Mark Allen Von Destinon, has been selected to serve in the House based on his scholastic achievements. A senior and honors student at Belleville High School, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Von Destinon of 44512 Lake Crest Dr., Belleville.

He will be accompanied to Washington by his parents.

Mark also was one of two Belleville students who attended this year's sessions of the annual Wolverine Boys' State held on the campus of the Michigan State University. He later related his experiences at a dinner-meeting of the Belleville Kiwanis Club.

Sunday school shows rise in attendance

An increase of 44 students in Sunday school attendance has occurred at the First United Methodist Church in Belleville. Attendance as of Dec. 16 was 146, Pastor Rev. Joy E. Arthur said. This compares with last year's attendance of 102.

A THOUGHT TO REMEMBER

BY HAROLD REDISKE, DIRECTOR

January 1, after all, is just another calendar date. But voices and noises join in mixed emotions. It means gaiety and gladness, a partying time for some people. It is a parting time for others who exile or disengage themselves from the past. All on account of a calendar date.

Some people will ponder and be proud of what was done in the past. Others will think of things done and can not now be undone. Some will say they will change the ways of their days; they will try to live better by the Book...Others will try to live with a better pocketbook. All this too - on account of a calendar date...

The message Happy New Year is heard everywhere - on account of a calendar date. For ourselves, we simply and sincerely say to all our friends who read this - "May you be happy... May God Bless you" - on EACH and EVERY calendar date...

Mahalak sponsors bill to purchase used buses

State Rep. Edward E. Mahalak (D-Romulus) has co-sponsored legislation to allow the Department of State Highways and Transportation to use available funds for the purchase of used buses to refurbish and lease them to municipal bus systems for $1 a year.

Mahalak said he is pushing for quick legislative approval of the bill, since there is an urgency involved. "The increasingly critical fuel shortage can be expected to increase public use of buses, yet cities with bus systems may have a long wait to obtain new buses."

Mahalak estimated that there are at least 200 used buses throughout the state which could be reserved for use.

"Normally it takes about 10 months to build and deliver buses from the time of the order," Mahalak said. "It would take much less time to refurbish a used bus to put it in good, safe running condition. They are available and could be obtained from Detroit's DSR and other municipal bus lines, probably very reasonably."

The bill, co-sponsored by Mahalak, would enable the State Highways and Transportation Department to use unobligated money in its general transportation fund for public transportation purposes.

This, Mahalak explained, would legally clear the way for the department to buy, renovate and lease the old buses.

"The cost to the state would be comparatively small, but it would be one way to meet one of the challenges of the energy crisis," he said. "It would be a direct aid to cities and other municipalities and an indirect aid to all of those citizens who may be forced to turn to public transportation."

73-534

RESOLUTION NO. 73-534

WHEREAS: Recreation is by far the most prevalent demand placed on the City Officials of the City of Romulus; and

WHEREAS: It is the obligation of the City Officials to attempt to provide reasonable services to its citizens, the City of Romulus is desirous of providing a recreational facility of sufficient size to service the citizens of Romulus; and

WHEREAS: The current fuel shortage has placed upon citizens of the United States the requirement to voluntarily conserve fuel, the City of Romulus is determined to provide means through which its citizens may comply with the Federal request to conserve fuel, but at the same time, avail themselves of the much needed recreational outlets; and

WHEREAS: The County of Wayne is the owner of approximately 335.52 acres of land located in the northeast 1/4 of Section 3 (bordering 40 acres owned by the City of Romulus and the Romulus Community School District), proposed by the City to be used as a part of the snowmobile park; and

WHEREAS: Preliminary investigations set forth a desirability of 120 acres for the development of such a park.

NOW, THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED: That the City of Romulus does, herewith, set forth its desire to obtain the temporary use of 80 acres of land currently owned by the County of Wayne and described and amended hereto as Amendment "A" for recreational purposes for a period of two years.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: That the City of Romulus is totally prepared to execute lease agreement containing a 90 day cancellation clause and/or other appropriate agreements as would be advisable by the County of Wayne for implementation of the aforementioned.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: That the City of Romulus will provide wholeharmless agreement in favor if the County, necessary public liability insurance and defray all improvement and maintenance cost incurred in the development and conduct of this project.

BE IT FINALLY RESOLVED: That the City of Romulus is anxious to proceed with the development of this park and pray that the County of Wayne will take immediate action in the disposal of our petition.

Pastor receives award for work

The pastor of St. Stephen's Church in New Boston, Father Alexander J. Wyrwal, has been named recipient of the John Farwell Award by John Cardinal Dearden, Archbishop of Detroit.

The award carries with it an appointment to theological study at the North American College in Rome from March 1, 1974 through June.

Speaking for Cardinal Dearden in a letter to Father Wyrwal, Bishop Walter J. Schoenherr praised the St. Stephen's pastor "for your hard work in parish ministry, and also for your special efforts to keep abreast of the continued growth of the church."

State to create civil service post

Open examinations for the newly created state police service trooper classification has been set up by the Michigan Department of Civil Service.

The classification is a training position for young men interested in becoming state police troopers. The Michigan State Police Department, expects to hire approximately 50 young men through the new program.

Applications will be accepted until Jan. 7 from men between the ages of 17 and 20. The service trooper begins at $3.84 per hour with full civil service benefits and can advance to $4.84 per hour, top pay for the class.

Applicants must be willing to work anywhere in the state. Living quarters will be provided until housing can be found in the area of employment.

Civic Club to select new board officers

Members of the Sumpter Township Social Civic Club recently elected new officers for the 1974 term.

Michael Huziak was elected president, Walter Brandt as vice-president and Martin Kalasz as secretary.

Gil Horchen and Edmund Swartz will share the treasurer's position.

Charles Schwartz will serve as sergeant-at-arms. Howard McDaniels, Vern Pratt, Stan Januszki, Max Harnish and Al Wierzbicki will be trustees.

SAFE LANDING—The pilot of a single engine Cessna airplane made an emergency landing in a bean field south of Metropolitan Airport in Romulus recently. Observing the grounded plane, which belongs to the Tulsa, Okla. firm of Gleason Romans Pipe Line Aero Services, are Robertson Horton, Gerald McDiarmid, who saw the plane land, and a Wayne County Sheriff's photographer, Harold LaFrenier. The plane apparently was forced down because of icing conditions on the engine.—Roman-Enterprise photo.

Area-wide survey

Bureau to study home maintenance

A sample of households in this area will be included in a nationwide survey of home upkeep and improvement costs to be taken by the Bureau of the Census.

The bureau is part of the U.S. Department of Commerce's Social and Economic Statistics Administration.

Robert G. McWilliam, director of the bureau's data collection center in Detroit, announced that householders will be interviewed during the first two weeks of January.

The survey is conducted four times yearly to provide a continuing measure of this segment of America's economy. The sample of households here are among the approximate 6,000 throughout the United States that will be asked about alterations, repairs, and additions to their homes.

Results of the July 1973 survey showed that during the second quarter 1973 homeowners (owner-occupants of single unit properties) spent $2.1 billion on improvements such as additions, alterations, or major replacements. This was 77 percent of the total spent on residential property improvement.

Teaching career ends at 27 years

Ella Woolery, a member of the Van Buren Public School District's teaching staff, has retired from the system after 27 years of service.

Mrs. Woolery, whose retirement was effective Dec. 31, was director of the Title One Reading Program for the school district. She and her husband, Warren, reside at 8538 McKean Rd., Willis. She began her teaching career at the district's elementary level in 1946. In 1959 she was assigned to the remedial reading program and in 1966 became director of the school system's Title One Reading Program, a federally sponsored program.

He was promoted to assistant vice president in 1969 and in 1972 transferred to Branch Division to become one of its five regional managers.

Romulus man dies

A Romulus man was fatally injured by fire when the cab of a bulldozer he was operating burst into flames.

Killed in the recent Canton Township fire was Clifford Jodoif, 50, of 15300 Colbert St., Romulus.

Canton Township Fire Chief Melvin Paulun said Jodoif was fatally burned when a salamander kerosene-fed heater in the cab portion of the bulldozer tipped over and burst into flames.

The bulldozer's heater tipped over when the vehicle backed up over an incline at the site, the fire chief said.

Jodoif was operating the bulldozer at Munns' Disposal site, located at 5444 S. Lilley Rd., where he was employed for the last several years.

DATSUN SAVES

About a gallon of gasoline a day

With the demand for fuel rising faster than the supply, here's one way to help ease our energy crisis. According to the latest U.S. Bureau of Highway figures, the national average for gas mileage is about 13.5 miles per gallon. The new Datsun 1200 gets around 30 miles per gallon or over twice the national average. The average car in the U.S. is driven just over 10,000 miles a year, so you can save about a gallon of gas every day by driving a 1200. With gasoline prices going up, it's a considerable saving of another important resource: your money. Drive a Datsun...then decide.
